Dear Irv:

"Misunderstanding China" reached Moscow this week and I had a chance to show it to a group of people last night.

The unanimous view: it was superbly written, researched and produced.

I plan to show it again to some Soviet officials in the next few weeks, hoping to find out more about their misconceptions of China. An American guide at a U.S. exhibit now touring the country recently told some Russians she was born in Peking; that she spoke three dialects of Chinese. They were flabbergasted. One man wanted to know: "What do the Chinese really look like?"

There may be a sequel for you yet.

Best from Dodi.

Sincerely,

Murray Fromson
